

Oxford Internet Survey
Oral Consent Script

Good morning/afternoon. I am conducting a survey in this area on behalf of Oxford University. It concerns how people live in Britain today and the role of the INTERNET and technologies in daily life. You have been selected as the person in this household that we really need to speak to - your opinions will be valuable to us whether or not you use the Internet. The University of Oxford will give £5 to Oxfam as a thank you for your help with this research.

If you choose to be a part of this project, I will ask you a range of questions about the role of online activities and attitudes in daily life. Your answers will be completely anonymous and no one will be able to personally identify you. You don't have to agree to take part; you can ask me any questions you want before or throughout; you can also withdraw at any time without giving a reason.

This research project has been reviewed and approved by an Oxford University ethics committee. If you are unhappy and wish to make a formal complaint, please contact the ethics committee. Their email address, postal address and this project's ethics reference number on the written information I will give you.

Here is a written copy of everything I said to you. [Give 'Participant information sheet']

Do you have any questions?

Do you give your permission for me to interview you?

Ok, thanks, let's start.
